THREE MILLION WOMEN PLEDGE THEIR AID TO PROHIBITION

RESOLUTION SHOWS STATE IS TO BLAME FOR POOR ROADWAY

Stated Unofficially The State Agreed To Provisions

COUNCIL MET IN SPECIAL SESSION

Minutes of Meeting Are Introduced In Road Controversy

The City of Albany is not responsible for the condition of "Echols Hill," according to unofficial information given here today.

Following the publication of a statement from W. A. McCalla, state highway engineer, in the Thursday issue of The Daily, the city of Albany still maintains that the paving of the "Echols Hill" road is a matter for the state highway commission to decide and a project with which the city of Albany has no connection.

The following minutes of a meeting held in 1924 at which time this same link of the Bee Line highway was taken under discussion plainly outlines the position of the city with reference to the building of this particular stretch of highway:

Special meeting of the Council, November 8, 1924, 5 p.m.

President A. L. Jolly called the council to order with members present as follows: Buck, Maxwell, Norwood, Royer and Sivley. He read the call for this meeting which was to consider a resolution with reference to the Somerville road repairs.

The following resolution was adopted: Whereas, a portion of the Bee Line highway is located within the corporate limits of the City of Albany, Ala., is out of repair and needs attention, and whereas, said city is short of funds with which to repair the same, but is desirous of having said repairs done as speedily as possible, and whereas some negotiations have been had between Thomas A. Bowles, city treasurer of said city and B. L. Malone on the part of the said city to enlist the aid and assistance of the state highway commission of Alabama in repairing said highway in said city, the same being known as the Decatur and Somerville pike. Therefore, be it resolved, by the city council of Albany, Ala., as follows:

If the state highway commission will repair and put in condition that part of the Decatur and Somerville pike road in the city of Albany, Ala., beginning at the southern boundary of said city and going north to and including the intersection of 9th street South in said city, the said city pledges itself to repair and put in condition that part of the said Decatur and Somerville pike road beginning at the intersection of 9th street south and going north to and including the intersection of Moulton street east.

It was stated unofficially that the state highway department subscribed to the above agreement, but had never undertaken the completion of the project. "Echols Hill" has been repaired in portions several times since the matter was brought to light some two years ago, but the actual paving of the thoroughfare is still awaited by the people of these cities and people of the county who must travel the roadway daily.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 4.—The bodies of W. A. Barnes, aged 38, and his two children, Lois, aged eight, and John, aged six, were found today in a closed car at Ellsworth, Ohio, 16 miles south of here, under circumstances which led authorities to believe the tragedy was a double murder and suicide.

School boys found the car behind the school at Ellsworth, with the engine running. Investigation showed that an inner tube had been cut, one end tied over the exhaust pipe of the little coupe and the other placed inside the car.

Barnes' wife deserted him and their three children two years ago. A third child lived with Barnes' parents at New Castle, Pa.

Coroner M. E. Hayes, of Mahoning county, found that death of the three was due to monoxide poisoning. His farewell verdict has not yet been made known.

Birmingham Girl Swallows Poison

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 4.—Josephine Grossman, 21, of 1423 Eighth Avenue, North, is near death in the Birmingham general hospital, as a result of having swallowed poison in an alleged suicide attempt.

Attaches at the hospital stated that her condition was extremely critical. The girl has offered no explanation for her act and members of the family were unable to assign a reason. Her father, Esrael Grossman, is proprietor of a grocery store at the Eighth avenue address.

Merchants Carry Petition Around

T. G. Crane and D. W. Speake were busy today with the half-holiday petition which is being presented to all the merchants of Albany and Decatur. The furniture men of the cities signed the petition yesterday and other retail tradesmen were in line with the proposal today. Mr. Crane called attention to the verbal agreement regarding "pay day" dates. Merchants are expected to close on Wednesday rather than Thursday, the date of the proposed holiday, when "pay day" falls on the latter date.

MORE GOLD FOUND NEAR DEMOPOLIS

Mystery Surrounds The Discovery of New Caches of Coin

(Associated Press)

DEMOPOLIS, Ala., June 4.—Gold digging about Shady Grove has notted other results, it was learned here today, but the latest reported discovery of yellow coins is wrapped in mystery as deep as that touching the cache unearthed by the Whitfields several days ago.

The neighborhood heard today that two men had uncovered another pot of gold at the root of an ancient oak on lands other than that owned by the Whitfields. Credence is given locally to the latest story by reason of the fact that tradition says gold in volume was planted when the Union army was sweeping southward and it seemed that all property would be lost to the invading hosts.

MIRACLE WORKER PUT UNDER BOND

Self-Styled "Prophet" Taken Into Custody at Birmingham

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, June 4.—C. M. Grace, self-styled "prophet" who has been away large audiences, largely of negroes, in a tent near 15th street and Ninth avenue North ended his career in Birmingham, today, temporarily, at least.

Grace was arrested and escorted to the office of Solicitor Jim Davis, where he was placed under bond of $5,000, returnable to Judge H. P. Abernathy. Grace was charged jointly with violating the medical practice act and inciting to riot.

Grace, a swarthy faced man, who claims to be a native of Portugal, was accompanied by two negro women and was in a large automobile when arrested. He wears his hair long and his chin is set off by a neatly chopped VanDyke beard.

His career was brought to an end as a result of a sermon he is said to have delivered Thursday before nearly 2,000 people, in which he is said to have urged the negroes to "stand up for their rights and obtain social equality."

A squad of police and state law enforcement officers attended the service and later reported Grace's statements to Solicitor Davis. Grace claims to be a miracle worker, according to police and obtained at least a bucket of money in contributions yesterday.

Second Explosion Within Three Weeks at U. S. Ministries

(Associated Press)

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 4.—A bomb was exploded at the door of the American legation today. Some damage was caused but no one was injured.

The bomb explosion in Montevideo today is the second that has occurred in front of an American legation in South American countries within the past few weeks. On May 16 a bomb exploded in front of the United States ministry in Buenos Aires, causing some damage to the structure, but injuring no one.

The Buenos Aires explosion in police circles was attributed to agitators protesting against the convention for murder in Massachusetts, of Nicolo Sacco and Bartholomew Vanveti. Several days after the explosion, the meeting place of a committee which was carrying on agitation in behalf of the two convicted radicals, was raided and several arrests made.

The minister of foreign relations Augustus Jay and expressed regret later called on Ambassador Peter for the incident.

Ambassador Jay was not in the embassy at the time of the explosion, which came shortly after Sacco and Vanveti had been denied a new trial.

DETAILS LATER

WASHINGTON, June 4.—A report to the state department said a bomb exploded at eight o'clock this morning in the vestibule of the building in Montevideo, Uruguay, in which the chancellery of the American Legation is located, but no one was injured.

HOMES BOTHERED BY NIGHT PROWLER

"Peeping Tom" Said To Have Been Noticed At Residences

Local authorities are seeking to discover the identity of a night prowler, who is said to have been noticed lurking about various residences the past few nights.

This is the first "Peeping Tom" case on record here in sometime and authorities are determined to break up the practice before it becomes widespread. One irate householder is said to have taken a shot at a prowler seen about his residence. Another citizen is said to have tracked, by means of muddy footprints, a prowler from near his house considerable distance on the cement sidewalk, but lost the trail when the mud wore off of the prowler's shoes.

ASKS COMMITTEE TO HALT ALLEGED ILLEGAL CONDUCT

NEW SENSATION IN SENATE RACE

Newberryism Must Not Be Allowed In This State, Black Says

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 4.—Judge R. B. Evins, chairman of the democratic executive committee, today was asked by Hugo L. Black, candidate for the United States senate, to "take steps at once to put an end to open, illegal conduct" of some of his opponents in the senate race, which he charged was in violation of the corrupt practice acts.

Mr. Black specifically charges that "clubs" or groups of friends of three of his opponents have been expending money in furtherance of the campaign of the three candidates in question, and that this is in violation of sections 588, 599 and 591 of the state political code.

The letter, which was forwarded to Judge Evins, declares it is the writer's opinion that the democratic committee should take immediate steps to "curb illegal practices" adding that "Newberryism must not be allowed to gain a further foothold in this state."

Mr. Black's letter asserts that there are five alleged illegal clubs operating in behalf of L. B. Musgrove and that one each represents the candidacies of Thomas E. Kilby, and John H. Bankhead. It was also stated that under the state law, candidates for the senate, must not spend over $10,000 in seeking election and that these clubs or voluntary organizations have been a means of expending more than the allotted amount.

POWER COMPANY IS PRAISED BY EDITORS

Resolution Praising the Position of Heflin Is Withdrawn

(Associated Press)

AUBURN, Ala., June 4.—Resolutions praising the work done in the state by the Alabama Power company and taking note of papers that have attacked the Press Association were passed by the Alabama Press Association here yesterday.

The passage of these resolutions and the election of F. W. Stanley, of the Greenville Advocate, as president of the Association for the coming year, featured the last meeting of the body.

The passage of the resolutions followed the withdrawal of a resolution, reported by the resolutions committee, approving Senator Heflin's stand on acceptance of the bid of the Alabama Power company for Muscle Shoals.

Offer of this resolution threw the convention into confusion and caused a heated debate.

Trees Bend As Wind Hits Here

Trees here lost leaves and limbs late Thursday, as Albany and Decatur were visited by high wind and rain. Threatening clouds, gathering about five o'clock, sent citizens scurrying to cover. The Twin Cities, being protected by hills, however, did not feel the full effect of the super-breeze.

Some telephones were reported out of commission as result of the storm, but damage was not heavy.

FEDERATED CLUBS IN BIENNIAL MEET SUPPORT DRY LAW

Modification Opposed By Delegates To Gathering

REFERENDUM IS NOT FEARED

Individual Clubs Work For Enforcement, President Says

(Associated Press)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 4.—The women of the country do not fear a dry referendum, in the opinion of Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the general Federation of Women's clubs which, at the biennial convention, has placed 3,000,000 women on record as "unquestionably supporting the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, and opposed to any modification."

"This convention will, I am confident, send the women home to work harder than ever for law enforcement," said Mrs. Sherman in enumerating the convention's achievements.

"If there should be a national referendum, and the women would not fear one, enforcement campaigns would be waged by every individual club in the country."

Today, the last of the convention, is dedicated to "the American home department," the keynote of the gathering.

MISS HAMILTON TO SEEK CITIES TO AID

Approximately 200 Are To Come Here For June Short Course

Miss Sallye Hamilton, Home Demonstration agent, urged members of the Albany-Decatur Kiwanis club, as a body and as individuals, to aid in perfecting plans for the coming Morgan County Short Course which is to be held in Albany-Decatur June 16-17-18 and which more than 200 Morgan County girls are expected to attend. Miss Hamilton briefly outlined the plans now in view before the gathered Kiwanians Thursday night.

Mrs. L. P. Troup, as a representative of the Federated Women's clubs which organizations introduced Miss Hamilton, stressing the work that is being done over this county and asking that the Kiwanis club lend a friendly ear to the plea of the clubs in these cities.

Miss Hamilton outlined an interesting plan, including the features of the three days entertainment and instruction for the visiting Morgan County contingent. The club endorsed the movement unanimously and the Farm Relations Committee was instructed to work with Miss Hamilton in making the meeting a success.

SYNOPSIS

Molly Cochran, wife of the Governor, threatened with exposure of an innocent but suspicious appearing incident in her girlhood life, leaves a note telling her husband she is determined to follow a literary career, and goes from Texas to New York. There she reads an article in a newspaper telling of her haunting when a canoe capsized. In reality she has voluntarily lost herself rather than imperil her husband's political career.

CHAPTER XXVII

One vicious hot morning in late August—two Augusts after the war had broken out in Europe—the bureau from which Molly had occasionally part-time work called up. Myron Eldredge had a book to be typed. His secretary had quit in a huff. He was a difficult man to work for, and he had the vicious handwriting on earth. Would she care to try it?

Molly would. At that particular juncture she would have undertaken to type a book in ancient Atlantean for Beelzebub, prince of Devils.

Myron Eldredge's apartment was in one of those awe-inspiring new studio places overlooking an ancient square. Twelve stories up, a trim maid opened the door and ushered her into the most beautiful room she had ever seen.

The maid returned to say that Mrs. Eldredge would see her directly. She was to look over the manuscript. She led the way to a smaller room, beautiful, too, after its fashion, but very simply furnished.

"Stop that infernal machine a minute, don't you?" he ordered irritably.

glanced with a typewriter desk, a chair, or two, and a chintz-covered day bed.

When Molly saw the manuscript her heart flinched within her. She had not supposed that any handwriting could prove too much for her, but this was a genius all its own. After thirty minutes of the most concentrated effort of which she was capable she had made out that there were a dozen words. She pushed the manuscript from her. In the confusion of her disappointment, she fell backward involuntarily to her eyes, scattered on the mahogany floor.

At that moment the door opened and Myron Eldredge came in—or rather looked in. His every movement had the abrupt, jarring character of a man who keeps his fingers motor running all the time at top speed. He paused in the doorway to light a cigarette, and Molly made short shrift with the type. She had time even for a fleeting observation of two. He was tall, wiry, lean, brown, the kind of ruggedness combined rather ruthlessly by the light summer sun. He wore a flannel shirt, light brown hair, iron-gray eyes, and a face seemed and corded with over-work and worry. She guessed that he was at least ten years younger than he looked.

He seemed in no hurry now, however. He stood there smoking and looking at Molly with a detached, impersonal sort of interest, staring her up, no doubt, as a possible interpreter of Rubens.

"Eldredge," he said at last, "but don't look too shrewdly young—in the straight-up-and-down thing with the white—what do you call 'em—clairs and cuffs? Ah, I have it," he breathed a sigh of relief, "you look precisely like a little choir boy in vestment—that pleases you know." That was what he had been trying to puzzle out.

"It's the dress," Molly explained, smiling. "It always 'misleads' them. They come cheaper."

"Hum-m! I see." He lit another cigarette and offered her one, which she refused. "And so you've given me up, too?" he observed presently. "Well, you're the nicest in the last day and a half—and this weather, too. I'm just about thereabout." He ran a tentative handkerchief round inside his collar, took off the glasses and mopped his forehead. "Nothing short of blackmail, anyhow, you know, that accused female leaving me in the hole like this—sabotage. She knows she's the only person on earth who can read my handwriting."

"Perhaps if you could help me a little..." Molly suggested. He stared. "If my dear young lady, you don't imagine for a minute that I can read it, do you?" When Molly made no answer, but only went on gazing despairingly at the manuscript, he added with an abrupt, bouncing glance, "They told you I was willing to pay double the usual rates, didn't they? This thing's got to be in the hands of the printer not later than the 15th of September."

"Surely you'll help me a little," Molly said again, wearily. "You must know at least what it's about." He gave her another bouncing glance—amorous and a trifle uncertain. Then he pulled up a chair. For an hour they struggled together over the first chapter.

"If you can make out with it somehow, I'm your debtor for life." At four o'clock he returned. He propped himself with pillows in a corner of the couch, lit a cigar, then tossed the pillows across the room with a muttered ejaculation that they were "too damned hot." Soon he was absorbed in comparing Molly's freshly typed sheets with the original.

Thirty minutes later he suddenly left off shuffling papers. "For the love of Heaven, stop that infernal machine a minute, won't you?" he ordered irritably. "It's getting on my nerves—it and this beastly heat." Then as Molly's flying fingers hung suspended over the keyboard, "Look here, I want to ask you a question or two."

"Well," she said, without turning round. She supposed it was something about the manuscript. He got up, took off the tortoiseshell glasses, and came over to the other side of the desk. He stood so for some minutes looking down at her—still with that detached, impersonal sort of interest. "You take it from me, you can't buck this game—not by yourself. You're not made that way. They'll knock you down and shove you under and trample on you, and nobody'll ever be the wiser. I know you're up against it, and against it hard. You've never have tackled that hellish job there. Now you just accept a little fatherly advice. Clear out for Dixie and your own folks—and clear out quick!"

There was a moment's silence, then Molly said, "You're very kind, but I'm afraid I can't clear out."

"You haven't got the money?"

She glanced away from him. "That's not all."

"You haven't murdered somebody, have you?" His eyes twinkled. Molly hadn't noted before how nice they were when he had the irritation out of them and the ugly big glasses off. "Anyhow, they don't hold that against you long in Texas!"

"How do you know I'm from Texas?"

"Thy tongue betrayeth thee, fair chorister." His mouth twisted humorously over the fresh cigar he was in the act of lighting.

At the outside door downstairs the breathless maid overtook her with an envelope. It contained her pay—double rates, as he had said—for a week in advance.

CHAPTER XXVIII

Two weeks later Eldredge came down to Molly's place one evening to bring the final chapters of the book. It was September then, and one of the sudden shifts of climate made a little fire on the hearth pleasant.

"Nice spot you've made for yourself, haven't you?" he observed, as he stretched his long, lean body in an easy chair before the grate. His eyes registered critical approval—approval and something besides.

"Did it all myself," Molly hastened to explain. "Bought the things at auction—then dyed, painted, upholstered."

He nodded. "I know. Some women have the trick—take a dry-woods box and make a home out of it."

"I'm not really so badly off as it looks that day," she went on after a slight hesitation. "Not quite. I let two rooms here, which takes care of my rent. Of course, there are tight squeezes, but I'm afraid the truth is, I prefer to be poor."

"Um-m! So..."

"You see, I like having my mind for myself."

"Hum-m! And what if I may ask, do you do with your mind?"

She made a longer pause. When she spoke there was a faint tinge of defiance in her voice. "I'm trying to write. I've sold a story or two, but what I want is to do plays."

Eldredge let out a low, profoundly impressed whistle. "The Lord have mercy upon your soul! No money—nothing—wants to write plays."

MAJOR MORGAN FIRES HEARERS WITH APPEAL FOR LEADERSHIP

Kiwanians Aroused By Stormy Veteran Who Decrys The Lack Of Competent Men To Carry American Destiny.

Major W. T. Morgan, Scranton, Pa., a representative of the International Correspondence schools now on a speaking tour throughout the nation, Thursday night relighted the fires of ambition burning in the souls of men in his talk, "Essentials of Leadership," delivered before the Kiwanis club. The address of the stormy veteran of two wars was in the form of an appeal to men to awaken to the full responsibility of leaders in America and the necessity for handwork destiny of the nation.

The following excerpts of Major Morgan's address were outstanding:

There never was a period in the history of America when outstanding, upstanding, forceful leaders were so badly needed as at the present time. If the world ever needed leadership of the highest type in any period, greater than it does today, history does not reveal that fact. In political, commercial, industrial and professional life the demand for leadership is the most urgent need of this age.

The would-be leader must have a passion for leadership. The great difficulty with the majority of mankind is that there is no passion for excellence, no passion burning within their breasts to be the greatest in their line no passion to stand head and shoulders above the masses. This passion for leadership is the great force which has brought mankind to its present high state of development. The would-be leader cultivates this passion for leadership until it becomes a soul absorbing ambition.

The leader has a definite aim, he knows his objective, he knows what he wants and compels each step to carry him nearer his goal. No drifting with the tide. He cannot be turned aside from his purpose by storm, by scorn or by siren song. But few know what they want in life. Most men are simply drifting without either chart or pilot.

The leader must believe in himself, in his possibilities, in his undiscovered, undeveloped self. Were I to tell you that you had already put forth your greatest effort, that you had already done the greatest thing possible for you to do, that you had already accomplished the one supreme possibility of your lives, you would know that I was misrepresenting you. The question for each of you is not what you have done, but what you might do; not what you have accomplished, but what you can accomplish; not the man you are, but the man you might be. If in some way I could introduce you to the man you could be the man you should be, and then show you the pigmy, the dwarf, that many of you are permitting yourselves to be you would go away from here determined to develop the possible giant within. Your unsuspected self seeks in the final destiny of the nation.

Leaders are only little men intensified expanded, enlarged, dominated by a great purpose. You have within you many of the traits endowments and qualities possessed by the outstanding leader. The only difference between the two is, that you have not developed while he has. You have permitted your latent possibilities to lie dormant, while he has aroused his and given them full development. The leader is conscious of, and uses to its fullest extent, that reservoir of inner power.

The supreme ambition of the leader is, in everything, to surpass himself. At each successive encounter he surpasses his previous record. His supreme ambition is not to surpass some other man, but that each day he may surpass his own best of the day before. No man remains long a leader whose only ambition is to beat his competitor. Beating his own best, is the motto of all real leaders.

"It Will Sure Clean the System"

Says Well Known Planter Endorsing Famous Extract Known As HERB JUICE; Gains 15 Pounds and is Feeling Fine.

"I have been bothered with constipation for as long as I can remember. I have used many different kinds of laxatives but never have found one so effective in constipation as the great Herb Extract, known as Herb Juice." The above statement was received a few days ago by the special representative of the Herb Juice Medicine Co., from C. F. Moore, well known planter, Montgomery, Ala., who is very much elated over his improved condition. Continuing his remarks Mr. Moore said: "Before I used your medicine I was always constipated and had to take a strong laxative to obtain relief. I could never find a remedy that would give satisfaction. Instead of getting better I grew worse all the time until I had about made up my mind to quit taking anything, but I felt so tired and worn out all the time, and had no energy to enable me to carry on my work. I ventured to try just one bottle of your herb extract known as Herb Juice, as it was so highly recommended. I must candidly admit that it is the most effective and most pleasant dose I have ever taken. I have found that it will sure clean the system. It is a fact that the first few doses of this great herb laxative gave me relief and after taking only three bottles I feel like a different man altogether. Through its natural action on the bowels this wonderful laxative has relieved me of constipation and now my bowels act as regular as clock work. I now go about daily routine with plenty of vim and vigor and when night comes I am not fatigued. I have a fine appetite, have gained 15 pounds, food tastes good, I have no trouble from indigestion, or heavy feeling after eating, in fact, I am just feeling fine. I know from experience what this medicine will do and advise every one suffering from constipation to use it; for I am sure they will be satisfied with results."

Stuck Six Times In Three Miles Pike

Getting stuck in the mud six times within a one to three mile distance of the Danville pike is the unusual record of J. M. Hatfield, Daily circulation chief. Mrs. Hatfield compiled his record Thursday. Mules were employed on each occasion to pull the car out of the mud. The circulation manager was finally instructed by some of the kind folks in that section to get off the public road and go across a small field lane, if he hoped to reach the main line highway.

McCaghren Sees—Need For Repairs

H. M. McCaghren who lives within two miles of Danville Pike declares that there will be no need for repairing the Danville pike unless there is work done on the pike roads leading to that main county thoroughfare. Mr. McCaghren saw the repair bill on the Danville pike as useless unless money is spent in repairing the smaller roads that farmers might be able to reach the main highway.

STUDENTS TO GATHER AT BAPTIST MEETING

Alabama To Lead Rolls
With At Least 400
Students

(Associated Press)
MARON, Ala., June 4—In connection with the first southwide convention of Baptist students that is to be held at Birmingham from October 23 to 31, Alabama students are expected to furnish 400 delegates. Miss Agnes Durant, of Judson College says. Miss Durant is Alabama's representative on the executive committee in charge of arrangements for the convention.

The convention will be held under the auspices of the Inter-Board commission on Student Religious Activities of the Southern Baptist convention and will have as its aim the study of the social, religious, personal and practical problems of college students and plans for linking the student up more definitely with the church during their college course and their fuller preparation for Christian service when they enter definitely upon their life careers.

Students will have a considerable part on the program, though inspirational addresses will be brought by leading representatives of the denomination and other speakers of national reputation.

Among the Alabama institutions that will be represented at the convention other than Judson college are: Howard College, of Birmingham; Tennessee River Institute, of Bridgeport; the University of Alabama; Alabama Polytechnic Institute; Alabama College, of Montevallo; Daphne Normal at Daphne; and the state normal colleges at Florence, Troy, Jacksonville and Livingston.

It is anticipated that at least 1,600 representative Baptist students of the south from both state and denominational schools will attend the convention and definite quotas have been assumed by the various states as follows: Alabama 400, Arkansas 40, Florida 125, Kentucky 50, Louisiana 25, Maryland 25, Mississippi 100, Missouri 50, New Mexico 5, North Carolina 125, Oklahoma 50, South Carolina 100, Tennessee 200, Texas 200 and Virginia 75.

Afternoon Rain To Hinder Carnival

Rain this afternoon will halt the Community Carnival planned for this evening on the Y. M. C. A. lawn. It was stated at noon by Mrs. L. P. Troup one of the leaders in the movement to realize funds for the community houses established in these cities. While the storm of Thursday did some damage to booths already erected on the lawn, it was stated that plans will be carried forward for the entertainment tonight unless it rains this afternoon. Funds realized from the carnival will go toward an increased work in the Community houses of Albany-Decatur.

LEADERS TO DETERMINE NEW USE FOR COTTON AT MAGIC CITY MEET

Falling Price With An Increased Acreage Is Viewed As Reason For Farm Heads Assembling To Go Over Situation.

(Associated Press)
AUBURN, Ala., June 3—Acting upon the theory that there are many new ways in which cotton can be used, a state conference of those interested in this subject is called for Birmingham, on Thursday, July 1, in a joint statement issued by Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation and Prof. L. N. Duncan, director of the Alabama Extension Service of Auburn.

A decision to call the conference was reached after the subject had been considered from every angle with the conclusion that there are a great many more ways for using cotton, especially low grade, and these new uses will prove beneficial to growers, spinners, bankers, merchants and all others who are concerned either directly or indirectly with cotton.

The possibility of finding new outlets for cotton has been discussed intensely throughout the South since the large crop of 1925 proved to be too much for normal demand and forced the price to the lowest level in several years. Prof. Duncan and Mr. O'Neal pointed out in their statement that it is entirely possible and probable that enough additional uses can be found for the South's fleecy staple to remove the surplus and allow the price to recover sufficiently to give growers a living return from producing it.

It was pointed out also that the cotton acreage of 1925 was the largest on record in this country and also in foreign countries and that with this increase in acreage the price will continue to go lower unless more are found to consume the product and thereby avoid a temporary surplus or over-production, which is one of the most unfortunate situations that can arise for farmers, it is maintained.

The Birmingham conference will be for one day only and it will be the first conference of its kind ever held in any state. It will be in the form of a round table discussion, during which each person present will be requested to discuss the subject from the standpoint of his business and in this way it is thought that a definite plan of procedure can be worked out, resulting in cotton taking the place of many other products which are now being substituted for it, in addition to discovering entirely new fields.

The joint statement made by Prof. Duncan and Mr. O'Neal follows:

"The present situation of cotton is such as to warrant the serious consideration of every person in the South because the social and business structure of the South is built around cotton. It is really a national problem in that it is the South's great cash crop and the largest export crop of the United States. Therefore, cotton does more than any other product to keep our national balance on the side."

"Under the stimulus of higher prices our cotton acreage in Alabama and in all other Southern states has shown a remarkable increase and with better methods of fertilization and cultivation and boll weevil control, we are threatened with over-production for some time unless new outlets are provided. Believing that there are many additional ways in which cotton can be used to advantage, we are asking all those who are interested in the subject to meet us in Birmingham, Thursday, July 1, for the purpose of going into the subject from every angle and deciding what can be done.

"It is impossible to send personal invitations to all who should attend the conference to present information and for this reason the announcement is being made through the press. It is hoped that bankers, retail merchants, wholesale merchants, concrete manufacturers, fertilizer manufacturers and dealers, feed manufacturers, industrial leaders, representatives of the press, spinners, and other lines of business will be represented. Each person should come prepared to make a contribution to the conference."

Mr. O'Neal left Auburn for Washington where he will confer with the secretary of agriculture and invite him to send a representative to the conference to present information from a national standpoint. Other outsiders who can contribute to it will be invited.

Morgan county's greatest agricultural year can be augmented with Morgan county's greatest industrial year if every citizen plays his part as it is cut out for him. Boost, boost, boost, there is always room at the top, while the bottom of the ladder has so many cluttered about it that the footing is not even safe.

THE OLD PARABLE AGAIN BROUGHT INTO PLAY

"He who laughs last laughs best," so saith the rhymes of old. Today the parable has been slightly changed to read, "He who laughs last is dumb." In this particular case, however, we choose to select the axiom in its original form for in this case we take occasion to laugh at Maury county and the Columbia Herald.

Some months ago, during the past summer, The Daily took occasion to write an article editorially regarding the lack of a hitch-yard in these cities and its disadvantages in offering the county trade no hitching facilities. The Columbia Herald came back with a soft answer but it did not turn away wrath. The Herald gave voice to the fact that Maury county had passed the horse-and-wagon stage and at that time was listening to the purr of motor vehicles from all parts of the county. In fact from reading the article one would judge that the Columbia people even took their motors to bed with them owing to a lack of parking space within the cities. That's that.

In a current issue of the Maury county publication we notice that motor licenses for the year 1926 are expected to reach 3,000. It is of interest no doubt to the Herald to note that motor licenses in Morgan county will reach 4,000.

Now The Daily regrets that Maury county hasn't grown any faster and this newspaper feels that the Maury county section is destined for greater growth, but the Herald should take cognizance of the fact that Maury can grow and grow and still be in arrears of this North Alabama county. Much of the growth of Morgan county is due to the exodus from Maury, "The Dimple of the Universe." Columbia folks often gather in groups here to talk about mule day in Columbia, the greatest day for Columbia commercially. It is probable that a great many Maury contains hitched up their mules and drove within easy distance of Albany-Decatur owing to the choked and jammed parking facility of the flourishing middle Tennessee city. More motor power to them, may that power increase along with the mule business.

WONDERS WHY THE DAILY DOES NOT TELL THE FACTS REGARDING NEEDS

"Why don't you quit congratulating the people of this section for what they are doing and tell the truth?" was the substance of a conversation in The Daily offices a few days ago. The speaker was referring to numerous articles appearing in this newspaper of a constructive nature, regarding the unprecedented growth of the Tennessee Valley and Albany-Decatur. The writer only smiled for he felt that he knew more about Albany-Decatur and human nature than the one of critical turn of mind. The writer felt that engendering the spirit of enthusiasm was of far more importance than telling citizens or cities wherein they have failed in the past. He did not believe that by an unexcelled volume of "strong" advice that he could find the responsive public that he has found in the past when he has called to the citizens of Albany-Decatur for response on any civic matter that proves of worth to the public in general. Such tactics have never proved beneficial in the long run, either to the populace or the newspaper.

The problem of the newspaper is finding the constructive points, not the destructive, the latter are manifest sooner or later if there is error somewhere, but the constructive viewpoint must always be in the fore if a hamlet is to become a town, or a town to become a city.

This same speaker was of the opinion that the banquet held a few nights ago, at which numbers of business men joined with the Junior Chamber of Commerce, was non-productive so far as actual result was concerned. The writer again took issue, feeling that if a concrete proposal had been presented the business people of the cities that there would have been suitable and ample response in money. Business men who work all day to accumulate savings cannot be expected to go into ecstasy over a proposed investment until they can see that the proposal is safe. You would not look forward to seeing your money taken from you simply because civic pride demanded that the city get up and move, the investment must be sound and it is upon this latter principle that the Junior Chamber of Commerce is working. Those young men do not expect business men to invest capital until it is proved beyond all doubt and to the satisfaction of these business interests that the investment is safe.

Constructive work provides pleasure in endeavor, a destructive tendency can only build up a hardened exterior with an even more calloused interior. Construct something other than a grave stone to mark your last resting place, your cities will be proud of you, your citizens will prosper you.

MORE THAN ONE SIDE TO EVERY QUESTION, ESPECIALLY IN POLITICS

When a fellow—or a newspaper—says Harry Walker, publisher of the Limestone Democrat, wants to flop from one candidate or another it is rather amusing to see the number of excuses which can be found to justify the act. It is best to come clean and just say: "Here's where I flop." Yes, all true enough, but while newspapers are best conducted in brevity, it is not always best to conduct news and editorial columns bluntly. When a newspaper changes its candidate, as we believe some newspapers will do in the gubernatorial race, after they have ascertained the records of various candidates, it should be the policy of that newspaper to give its reasons to the public. The wording, "Here's where I flop," would not suffice for the public mind. A long reasoning process, which perhaps would never carry the strength of the former stand, must be gone through with and the public satisfied as to the motives, being assured that there is nothing more than the actual worth of the candidate being taken into consideration by that newspaper. The public usually knows little of the newspaper business, the newspaper is regarded as a power to be feared or sought, but the public is busy with other business, its own business and cannot go into the detail of the newspaper world, therefore the public cannot see the workings from the inside standpoint, the public does not understand that principles more than the man are the interests of the constructive newspaper. Newspaper men are bound to show more interest in the basis of principle, in the platform of candidates, for newspaper men see them and read them day after day. They read them through a sense of duty while the general public is satisfied that so-and-so is for roads and schools and is a pretty good fellow and therefore a vote is cast for that candidate.

A newspaper should first be careful in selecting the candidate, there is usually no hurry for candidates are in the field long before election time and records are not considered until the last ninety days before election. The newspaper has plenty of time to select. There are often, however, many things entering into candidacies during the last days of the election drive and upon these unforeseen events a newspaper may grow cold or warm up to the candidacy of various political individuals. If a newspaper finds that it is wrong in its calculation of its candidate then it is best for the sake of the reading public to pull out immediately and show the public the reason for such action.

The time is past when men are backed because they live in any particular section of the country or state, the issue is the thing to regard. If the home man does not advocate principles which an editor believes beneficial to his reading public then it is the duty of the editor to state so, it is the duty of the newspaper to pull itself out of the race and it is justified, in so doing.

THE STATUS OF ECHOLS HILL QUESTION LAID TO HOME DOOR

The Daily is not conversant with the facts that are to come in the future with regard to Echols Hill paving and therefore cannot at this time voice an opinion which would be in fairness either to the state highway department or to the city of Albany. The Daily published Thursday excerpts from a letter from W. A. McCalla, state highway chief, in which he stated that the responsibility for the paving of that link in the Bee Line highway belongs to the city of Albany. The city has not yet had its inning and The Daily hopes that if there is any reason for leaving the hill in its present condition that the city authorities will make that fact known and thereby clear the public mind. The Daily does not doubt Mr. McCalla's statement, but it has been understood in the past, never very clearly, that other things have entered into the paving of the hill likely to throw the burden to the state. Just what that obligation might be has not yet been determined fully.

There remains, however, as a block to both southbound and northbound traffic a sufficient block on Echols Hill to keep all southbound trade away and divert traffic from the north. People who have traveled over this section of roadway do not desire to negotiate the same stretch twice. It is perhaps the most graphic illustration of absolute neglect on the part of somebody, no matter where the blame may rest.

The Daily hopes that the city of Albany will either bring evidence to fore, tending toward fastening the responsibility upon the state highway department, else take steps at once to have the highway placed in a condition that is passable in all kinds of weather. So long as the condition remains, then just so long is the country trade coming from the South on the Bee Line highway going to be diverted elsewhere.

It is noticeable, though not the fault of these cities, that there is not a single road leading into this important trading center which does not have a break somewhere before it reaches the city limits. It is the case on the Moulton road (now under construction), the Bee Line highway leading south, the Somerville road winding away to the east, the Courtland road near the intersection of the Trinity road, the Danville road where some four or five miles remains to be paved or even cherted. The responsibility for these "breaks" must come to rest sometime on the shoulders of responsible parties. The people have long tired of getting a portion of a road here and a portion of a road elsewhere when the largest portion of taxes paid in this county comes from the pockets of Albany-Decatur citizens.

CHILD NEEDS 6 HOURS CARE EACH DAY

Proper Nursing Care Requires Painsstaking Effort
But a Vigorous Son or Daughter Surely Is a Worth-While Reward.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A WASHINGTON dispatch says, "The care of one baby is a 'full-time job' for its mother for exactly five hours and forty-one minutes every day."

But the dispatch did not stop here. It told more about the exacting demands of motherhood. "It is a part-time job the best of the twenty-four hours," says the report.

The Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Labor Department has undertaken to find out all about this subject. To this end, "it tabulated reports from a group of seventeen young mothers, who studied the time they devoted to bottles, blankets, teething rings and rattles."

It did not require this scientific investigation to convince me that mother has a real job. It isn't a part time job, either. There is not a single day of the year that she is not entitled to overtime, double time, indeed.

It is the mother's instinct and the cheerful readiness to serve the tiny baby that makes it possible for the frail little thing to grow into vigorous childhood. It is not enough to give an hour or two to the infant. It is a never ending, non-stop undertaking.

The preparation of the feedings for the baby is in itself a real task. The utensils must be surgically clean. The milk mixture must be just as accurately compounded as is the prescription at the pharmacist's. Half-way measures won't do. Anything less than perfection means illness and possible death.

The mother must be a student of the infant's needs. With each week and each month there must be a change in the mixture. The proportions must be modified to suit the age and particular requirements of the growing child.

Most of the troubles, aches, pains and illnesses of the infant can be traced to improper feeding or careless preparation of the food. Of course, the breast-fed infant is twice blessed. It gets exactly the right food and escapes the dangers of contaminated food.

The young mother must be taught by the doctor, the nurse, the clinician or the baby health station just how to put together the ingredients of the bottle feeding. In getting the materials ready and the bottle filled, cooled for preservation and heated for feeding—to do these things will fill hours of time each day.

The mother job is indeed a real one, but it is the highest-paid of any work ever done. The reward of seeing a baby develop into a vigorous child and then grow into youth and beauty—where is there greater reward?

NEBRIG-LEE

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morgan Lee announce the marriage of their daughter, Beatrice to Mr. Arthur Henry Nebrig, which occurred on June 3rd, 1926. At home 423 Grant street.

Simplicity was the keynote of this lovely wedding which was solemnized at the home of the brides parents at 423 Grant street in the presence of a few intimate friends of the bride and groom. These guests were met at the door and ushered to their seats by Misses Emma Pride and Maxey Speake both of whom were attractively attired in afternoon frocks.

The interior of the home was artistically decorated, bowls of pink and white sweet peas on white pedestals were joined by streamers of tulle forming an aisle for the bridal party to march down. The vows were taken before an improvised altar which was placed in front of a bank of white and pink roses against a background of evergreens. Rev. W. P. Reeves officiated, using the ring ceremony. Misses Vista Hughes of Haines City, Fla., and Katherine McCormac were the bridesmaids. Miss McCormac was lovely in a bouffant robe de style gown of blue taffeta with a large pink hat while Miss Hughes becoming costume of green taffeta in bouffant style was topped with a green hat. They carried Colonial bouquets. The bride's piquant beauty was enhanced by her fuchsia taffeta dress and picture hat to match and her bridal bouquet was brides roses and lilies of the valley. She entered with her father and was met by the groom who was attended by his best man, William Singleton. Preceding the impressive ceremony Mrs. Joseph Petty sang "God Bless You" followed by a vocal solo "Because" sung by Mrs. R. M. McGlathery, Mrs. Seneca Burr presided at the piano, playing the wedding march while the party gathered at the altar and softly rendered "I Love You Truly" during the ceremony.

U. D. C. BENEFIT SATURDAY AFTERNOON

"Coming events sometimes cast their shadows before."

For quite a while the air has been filled with talk of the Benefit to be given by the Joseph Wheeler Chapter U. D. C., to aid in the completion of Stone Mountain Memorial and in placing a memorial window to the men who fell in the world war. The window is to be placed at the University of Alabama.

Miss Mary Lou Dancy, assisted by Mesdames R. T. Sheppard and F. P. Lide has worked untiringly to make this a really beautiful function. Saturday afternoon from three to five o'clock will be played at twenty-two tables, Miss Dancy presenting the souvenirs which will be something to be treasured. The purpose for enriching the national spirit and the forgetting of sectional glorification is prevalent in the plan.

Kills Father and Self; Hits Brother

(Associated Press)

WYNNEWOOD, Okla., June 4.—Walter Banderale, 28, today shot and killed his father Robert Banderale, wounded a brother, "Bee," 12 and then killed himself at the family home here.

The shooting is believed to have followed a refusal by the father to give money to Walter.

After Walter had shot his father three times the younger brother came into the room with a shotgun, "Bee" is said by members of the family to have shot once at Walter, but missed. The younger brother was shot in the arm.

The mother ran from the house and summoned officers. When she returned she found Walter lying across a bed with a bullet through his heart with his gun gripped in his hand.

Helpful Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I have been very much in love with a young man five years my senior. Sometimes he is very nice to me in public places and sometimes he is not. He is very peculiar in his actions, and is inclined to think very much of himself. Should I still continue his friendship? UNDECIDED.

UNDECIDED: This is a question which you must decide for yourself, my dear. If you like this young man so well that his little peculiarities do not annoy you, then there is no reason why you should not continue his friendship. But if you are disturbed by his eccentricities, then I don't think it would be wise for you to continue to see him.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl 17 years old. I have been going with a young man about four years older than I. Many times I have asked him over to my house to meet my parents, but he feels very bashful about coming. I care for his friendship very much and wish to go out with him often. Please tell me if I should forget him or still continue his friendship. BRUNETTE.

BRUNETTE: Your friend must conquer his bashfulness, my dear. For it is most unwise for you to go out with young men whom your parents have not met. Explain to your friend that he must call for you at your home, and in that way you can present him to your parents.

Pa., who have been spending several weeks with their daughter, Mrs. Joe Hill are expected to leave this week or their home.

Mrs. Atwood Mathis has returned home, having spent several weeks in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Miss Nettie Lou Witt who was a student in Athens College has returned to her home "Woodside" for the summer months.

Miss Florence Estes was a visitor in Athens Wednesday.

No more RHEUMATISM

IT'S GONE! That awful agony! Rheumatism can't stand the rich, red blood that S. S. S. helps Nature build.

But rheumatism will bring pain and misery to your joints and muscles just as long as you are without plenty of rich, red blood in your system.

It's the red-blood-cells that S. S. S. helps Nature build that drive out of your system the impurities that cause rheumatism. And until you do build up your blood to where it is pure and rich and red, you simply can't get rid of rheumatism.

And S. S. S. is the thing. Red blood conquers rheumatism. Everybody knows that.

S. S. S. means millions of red-blood-cells—means health all over. No more rheumatism. Nights of rest—days of joy, filled with the happiness of accomplishment—made possible by a body brimful of red blooded life, energy and vitality.

That's what the end of rheumatism means—that's what S. S. S. brings to you. Get S. S. S. from your druggist. The larger bottle is more economical.

Patterson Will Make Three Talks

Andrew G. Patterson will make three talks at Florence Saturday and will swing back toward Athens Saturday afternoon, according to plans outlined today by followers here. Mr. Patterson has other plans in view for stumping other North Alabama counties and will likely make several addresses in voting centers of the Valley counties before the August primary date rolls around. Optimistic expressions are voiced by Patterson followers who believe that the chances for the nomination of the Morgan county candidate are brighter as the days move toward the August primary.

For the Cake that Must Be Good

In all the excitement of the hour—the wedding cake itself stands out. For the moment the center of all attention—it's a thing that a few will remember forever.

If every part of every sack of Valier's Dainty Flour were to go for cakes—and every cake a wedding cake—we could make it no finer than it is.

on June 11. The blustering Babe caused untold misery for Boston hurlers yesterday with his clouting, driving in five runs and aiding the Yanks to stave off a Boston rally which netted five runs in the 7th inning.

Detroit sailed to victory in the only other American league game, handing Cleveland a 3-2 drubbing. Detroit scored three runs in the eighth after Cleveland had held an early two-run lead from the second inning.

The National league race was characterized yesterday by the continued climbing talents of the Pirates. Arduous as the task has been, the Pirate crew continues its pace for winning ball games. The Pirates gave the Cubs the gate when Yde was in form and allowed but two safe blows. Both hits were made in the first inning, Adams signed and Wilson brought him around with a circuit smash. Pittsburgh scored twice in the second and then in the ninth when Yde doubled to bring Grantham around the sacks with the winning counter. The Pirates have been climbing steadily for the past month after a rather inauspicious start. The Pirates clung to the second division as if welded for the first few weeks of the season play and then started winning their two out of three series right along. The Boston Braves likewise continued their late spurt when they battled the Cincy Reds to a 12-5 verdict. Brave hitters clouted Red hurlers over the lot for an afternoon of base running experience. The Giants vanquished the Phillies in the other National league tilt 10-5.

Down in the Sunland circuit the Barons and the Pels continued their victorious march, the Barons shaking the Vol nemesis for a 10-9 nose-out win. The Pels hit hard to stop the Memphis onslaught, winning 8-7 with a ninth inning rally. Little Rock defeated Mobile 13-10 in a free hitting contest while Mule Haas brought the Crackers victory with a home run smash off Bates, Chattanooga pitcher. Eddie Lewis got his usual two-ply blow, hitting twice in five times at bat. Atlanta won in the eighth 5-3.

DO THAN BOY IS FUTURE HURLER

(Associated Press)

DO THAN, Ala., June 3—Another possible diamond star from an Alabama lot seems forthcoming in the person of James Schuyler, 15, a pitcher.

Schuyler, young in years, has just completed his first year with the Dothan High school team and has three more to play, since in the fall he will be beginning upon his Sophomore year.

Schuyler as a freshman in high school this year proved to be an exceptionally promising high school twirler who some day may write his name in the baseball hall, as many other Alabama boys have.

The youthful Dothan lad pitched two noteworthy games this year, one of them a perfect performance. In a game with Quincy high school on May 15 not a man reached first off Schuyler's delivery. And again on May 22 in a game with Newton only one man reached first, but was caught off the bag. Both of the games were no-run, no-hit affairs, but each were abbreviated affairs in that only seven innings were played. Only 42 men faced Schuyler in the fourteen

Did you ever run across a little jingle in your reading that just seemed to stick in your mind so that you could not get rid of it?

Well, that's just what I did this morning when I happened across the one above. I think that friend Browning just about took in the whole cycle of human experience when he penned those few words, for after all is said and done, isn't it the hope and ambition that we may advance a little further, improve ourselves a little, or build a little better, that spurs us onward to try and accomplish greater things? If the ultimate reward were actually in our grasp, would there be any incentive to bring out the best that is in us?

Our desire, the incentive that spurs us on, is to give to all JAM UP, 100%, EFFICIENT TIRE SERVICE. We are continually doing this for quite a number of people, and if you have not given us the opportunity to INCLUDE YOU, won't you give us a call? To serve you is a pleasure.
